ADCO is a leading private Australian construction company with an award-winning portfolio of more than 4,000 successfully completed projects since our commencement in 1972.

ADCO has been engaged by the City of Stonnington to construct the multipurpose sport and recreation facility at Percy Treyvaud Memorial Park (Project).

The Project includes various elements of structural steelwork, fabricated by a local Victorian based structural steel fabricator. As is customary in the Australian steel industry, fabricators source their steel from multiple local steel distributors who stock a combination of Australian manufactured and imported steel of appropriate dimensions and specifications, and which meet Australian Standards.

All structural steel used on the Project is sourced from local steel distributors. It is estimated that approximately 90% of the steel is manufactured in Australia whilst 10% is imported. The relevant test certificates confirm that the structural steel used on the Project has been tested and certified to satisfy Australian Standards.
